Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As an advanced computer user and United States Citizen, I must dissent with the Proposed Final Judgment in the Microsoft AntiTrust Settlement. The terms of the settlement are both too narrow (only citing 5 middleware components without regard to future implementations) and too short-sighted (addressing specific incarnations of the software and not the underlying practices of the Microsoft dynasty that makes fair competition nearly impossible).

This country has had the wool pulled over its eyes by so-called antitrust legislation before, in what amounted to pats on the head to the rabble-rousers who saw the corporations' unfair practices for what they were. But in this information age, do not be fooled into thinking that we, the masses, can be placated by token gestures and empty, unenforced policies. Your responsibility lies not in satisfying the corporations, but in upholding the standards of the people of this country. We're watching- do not let us down.
